

ParkCities People

University Park Resident Makes Kingly Gift

Posted on May 25th, 2010 by Georgia Fisher | Filed under Blog, Entertainment, University Park

Something tells me Rogge Dunn isn't exactly a bland guy.

Says Dunn (the one on the right), recent purchaser of a 7-foot Tyrannosaurus Rex model from Jurassic Park that's now on permanent display at the Museum of Nature and Science: "I remembered the joy that the movie Jurassic Park brought to my family, and thought this was a wonderful opportunity to share our excitement and enthusiasm for dinosaurs with the rest of the community."

Note, though, that Dunn's T-Rex is a fifth-scale miniature. The real deal would weigh about 3,000 pounds and be 20 feet tall. Yowzer.

http://www.parkcitiespeople.com/2010/05/25/university-park-resident-makes-kingly-gift/img_2933-2/